Detailed Statistical Tables: Federal Science and Engineering Obligations

To obtain accurate historical data, use only the latest detailed statistical tables (covering FY 1996) and not data published earlier. Data presented in trend tables are assembled from the most recent completed survey cycle. Data for prior years are reviewed for consistency with current-year responses and, when necessary, are revised in consultation with agencies and/or institutions. For that reason, references to prior-years' data should be restricted to those published in this document.

1 See Technical Notes, "Scope of Survey."

2 Not separately identified, but included under "Other S&E activities."

NOTE: Some trend shifts are related to institutional reclassification. Beginning in fiscal year 1978 two laboratories that were formerly considered academically administered federally funded research and development centers became part of their respective institutions: Applied Physics Laboratory (Johns Hopkins University) and Applied Research Laboratory (Pennsylvania State University). Data for these laboratories are included in the academic figures beginning in fiscal year 1978. Similarly, Draper Laboratories separated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) as of fiscal year 1974 to become an independent nonprofit institution; data for this laboratory are included in MIT's figures prior to fiscal year 1974.

1 See Technical Notes, "Scope of Survey."

2 Data shown for fiscal years 1963-74 and fiscal years 1975-77 represent obligations of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Energy Research and Development Administration, respectively.

3 The Agency for International Development (AID) continues its long term work on restructuring its internal database (a New Management System, NMS) which will integrate the agency's budget, programming, accounting and procurement systems. While parts of the NMS are currently working, the complete system should be in operation by the end of the calendar year 1997. As a result, AID's response to the fiscal year 1996 Federal support survey has again been produced using an interim reporting system as it was for the fiscal year 1995 survey. Any significant differences between AID's fiscal year 1996 and data prior to fiscal year 1995 can be attributed to this change in reporting systems. In addition, AID anticipates that future responses to the Federal support survey may also differ from the fiscal years 1995-96 submissions since the NMS, which will eventually be the database for reporting this information, will be refined to produce more accurate data.

4 Department of Defense (DoD) research is reported separately from DoD development. Fiscal year 1994 totals for the research and development portions are not comparable to other years; DoD was not able to provide comparable data. DoD states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-administered laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its obligations for advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies. Refer to table B-17 for DoD obligations to individual institutions, by research and development breakdowns.

5 Data collected before this year are not separately identified but are included under "Other S&E activities."

NOTES: Some trend shifts are related to institutional reclassification. Beginning in fiscal year 1978 two laboratories that were formerly considered academically administered federally funded research and development centers became part of their respective institutions: Applied Physics Laboratory (Johns Hopkins University) and Applied Research Laboratory (Pennsylvania State University). Data for these laboratories are included in the academic figures beginning in fiscal year 1978. Similarly, Draper Laboratories separated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) as of fiscal year 1974 to become an independent nonprofit institution; data for this laboratory are included in MIT's figures prior to fiscal year 1974.

Because of rounding, detail may not add to totals.

1 Department of Defense (DoD) research is reported separately from DoD development. DoD states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-administered laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies. Refer to table B-17 for DoD obligations to individual institutions, by research and development breakdowns.

[1] This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Labor, and Transportation; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

NOTE: The Agency for International Development (AID) continues its long term work on restructuring its internal database (a New Management System, NMS) which will integrate the agency's budget, programming, accounting and procurement systems. While parts of the NMS are currently working, the complete system should be in operation by the end of the calendar year 1997. As a result, AID's response to the fiscal year 1996 Federal support survey has again been produced using an interim reporting system as it was for the fiscal year 1995 survey. Any significant differences between AID's fiscal year 1996 and data prior to fiscal year 1995 can be attributed to this change in reporting systems. In addition, AID anticipates that future responses to the Federal support survey may also differ from the fiscal years 1995-1996 submissions since the NMS, which will eventually be the database for reporting this information, will be refined to produce more accurate data.

[1] This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Labor, and Transportation; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

NOTE: The Agency for International Development (AID) continues its long term work on restructuring its internal database (a New Management System, NMS) which will integrate the agency's budget, programming, accounting and procurement systems. While parts of the NMS are currently working, the complete system should be in operation by the end of the calendar year 1997. As a result, AID's response to the fiscal year 1996 Federal support survey has again been produced using an interim reporting system as it was for the fiscal year 1995 survey. Any significant differences between AID's fiscal year 1996 and data prior to fiscal year 1995 can be attributed to this change in reporting systems. In addition, AID anticipates that future responses to the Federal support survey may also differ from the fiscal years 1995-1996 submissions since the NMS, which will eventually be the database for reporting this information, will be refined to produce more accurate data.

[1] The Department of Defense (DoD) states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-affiliated laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its obligations for advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies. Refer to table B-17 for DoD obligations to individual institutions, by research and development breakdowns.

[2] This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Labor, and Transportation; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

NOTE: Does not include R&D obligations to university-administered federally funded research and development centers. See table B-38.

[1] The Department of Defense (DoD) research is reported separately from DoD development. DoD states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-affiliated laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its obligations for advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies.

NOTE: Does not include R&D obligations to university-administered federally funded research and development centers. See table B-38.

[1] The Department of Defense (DoD) states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-affiliated laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its obligations for advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies. Refer to table B-17 for DoD obligations to individual institutions, by research and development breakdowns.

[2] This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Labor, and Transportation; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

[1] The Department of Defense (DoD) states that more than 90 percent of its development obligations reported for universities and colleges are performed at university-affiliated laboratories that are separate from the academic departments. Furthermore, DoD states that much of its development obligations are for major systems development, that such obligations differ from its obligations for advanced technology development, and that DoD total development obligations are therefore not comparable with development obligations at other Federal agencies. Refer to table B-17 for DoD obligations to individual institutions, by research and development breakdowns.

[1] The fiscal year 1992, 1993, and 1994 obligations from the Department of Defense (DoD) to the Rand Corporation were mostly reported to three federally funded research and development centers administered by the Rand Corporation: Project Air Force, the Arroyo Center, and the National Defense Research Institute. Fiscal year 1991 obligations from DoD for the four entities were all reported as the Rand Corporation.

[1] This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Labor, and Transportation; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

NOTE: The Agency for International Development (AID) continues its long term work on restructuring its internal database (a New Management System, NMS) which will integrate the agency's budget, programming, accounting and procurement systems. While parts of the NMS are currently working, the complete system should be in operation by the end of the calendar year 1997. As a result, AID's response to the fiscal year 1996 Federal support survey has again been produced using an interim reporting system as it was for the fiscal year 1995 survey. Any significant differences between AID's fiscal year 1996 and data prior to fiscal year 1995 can be attributed to this change in reporting systems. In addition, AID anticipates that future responses to the Federal support survey may also differ from the fiscal years 1995-1996 submissions since the NMS, which will eventually be the database for reporting this information, will be refined to produce more accurate data.

1 Data shown for fiscal years 1963-74 and fiscal years 1975-77 represent obligations of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Energy Research and Development Administration, respectively.

2 Data shown for fiscal years 1963-79 represent obligations of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

3 This column displays data for the following agencies, if they reported obligations in the variables represented by this table: the Departments of Education and Labor; the Agency for International Development, the General Services Administration, the Office of Justice Programs, and the Social Security Administration.

1 The following portions of the RAND Corp. are FFRDCs: National Defense Research Institute (formerly Defense/Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff), Project Air Force, the Arroyo Center, and the Critical Technologies Institute. All other agency support to RAND is reported under nonprofit institutions.

2 In September 1991 the name was changed from Solar Energy Research Institute.

3 The Department of Energy removed the Inhalation Toxicology Research Institute from the Master Government List of FFRDCs in May 1996.

4 Only the C3I Federally Funded Research & Development Center and the Center for Advanced Aviation System Development parts of the MITRE Corp. are FFRDCs. All other agency support to MITRE is reported under nonprofit institutions.

5 Logistics Management Institute moved from Bethesda, MD, to McLean, VA, in May 1994.
