

David Wilson

Director of American Indian Affairs & Policy
SACNAS

Based in Washington, DC, Dr. Wilson manages multiple programs, services, and outreach related to American Indian and Native American programs and initiatives for the Society for Advancing Chicanos/Hispanics and Native Americans in Science (SACNAS). Previously, he served as a senior research scientist at the National Institute on Aging, National Institutes of Health.

Dr. David R. Wilson (Dine) graduated with a PhD in molecular and cellular biology from Arizona State University. His commitment to encouraging underrepresented minorities to pursue careers in science began when he was a graduate student and Regent's scholar working with high schools and community college students in the Four Corners area. Dr. Wilson completed a three year postdoc, and was promoted to a senior research scientist position, at the National Institutes of Health in the National Institute on Aging.