Question: Can I change parts of the LOI that I submitted?

Answer: At this stage, there is no point in changing the LOI itself. NSF is using the LOIs to get a sense of what proposals are likely to come in and the emphasis areas they will represent. Ultimately, the organization of the review process will depend on the content of the Full Proposals. For this reason, we have not set up any mechanisms to modify the LOIs.

Question: What parts of the LOI can be changed in the Full Proposal?

Answer: You may change the title, switch PI and co-PI, or even add co-PIs and senior investigators to the Full Proposal. We expect, however, that the major emphases in the project (i.e. the scientific contributions and broader impacts) will not change much from the LOI.
